Oh My Brain inc, ( Originally Mind's EYE) has been involved in technology since the early 1990's. We started off creating digital image for architecture, along with graphic design. In 1994 we fell into the World Wide Web, which was relatively new at the time. We moved the business to Georgetown in Washington DC in 1995 as that is were most of the internet activity was at the time. Over the last fifteen years we have created or built hundreds of websites. Many for fortune 500 companies. We are going to attempt to dust off the archives and start posting them here.

It all started in 1995 as a main team member for the launch of National Geographic .com which went live in 1996. This was one of he earliest database driven website of any any major player.

Out latest release as of December 15, 2008 is JoomlaDo. This is our first product line for the Apple iPhone and Apple iPod Touch. The JoomlaDo line of mobile products are applications that pull member information into your mobile device for communication with new or existing registrations on your corporate website.
